Greenfields School These Greenfields students talk about their favourite websites

Caroline

I'm really interested in Art so I often visit the Tate Modern website. I've just done a project for school on Picasso and this website was really useful. I could see the Picasso paintings in the Tate collection and there was some really useful information about each painting. I've been to the Tate Modern in London once, but I don't have to go again. I can visit it whenever I like on my computer.

Fran

I'm a Blue fan and I often visit their official website. You can learn lots of things about the members of the group and you can listen to their music. I've just listened to their new song and I've downloaded the words so that I can sing them. I know all their other songs. The website also gives you information about the group's concerts and you can buy tickets on-line. I need my Mum's credit card for that!

Chad

I haven't worked very hard at school this year but I've just found a great revision website. It's called BBC Bitesize Revision. When you connect to the website, there's a list of school subjects. You click on the subject you want, e.g. History, and then click on what you want to study, e.g. the Romans. You read the information and then you do a test. I've already done the History and Geography tests, but I haven't done Science yet. I think it's going to help me pass my exams.

India

India is the largest democracy in the world. It is a fast-growing country with modern industry and fast-growing cities. However, it is still a very poor country. One third of the world's poor people live in India and millions of children there do not finish primary school because they have to start work as young as seven. Only about 48% of Indian women can read.

Hinduism is India's main religion. It is the world's third most popular religion after Christianity and Islam. It has 750 million followers. The religion started 4,000 years ago in Northern India near the River Indus. It is the world's oldest religion that still exists today. Hinduism is unusual because it has no founder, no single teacher and no prophets. It also has many very colourful gods.

The Hindus believe that what you do in this life is more important than what you believe. The Hindus believe that every living thing has a soul, and when it dies that soul goes to another body. This may be a human body, an animal or a plant. What we come back as depends on how good or bad we are in this life.

The cow is a sacred animal for Hindus, and cows can go anywhere they want to. When you are driving a car you must stop if a cow walks in front of you on a busy street, even in New Delhi, the capital city. Most Hindus do not eat beef, and many of them are vegetarian.

The most important festival for Hindus is Diwali, or the festival of light. This lasts for five days in October/November.

- 1 A billion people live in India.
- 2 India is a democracy.
- 3 India has a lot of poor people.
- 4 Many Indian children do not go to secondary school.
- 5 There are lots of tropical forests in India.
- 6 India has high mountains and deserts as well as tropical forests.
- 7 Over 80% of India's population are Hindus.
- 8 Buddhism started in India.
- 9 The tiger is India's national animal.
- 10 Most Hindus never eat meat from a cow.
